Come to Moaña, Galicia, Spain, and Enjoy a Celtic Music Festival Live Online

The Interceltic Festival of Morrazo is a folk music festival held in the fishing village of Moaña, located in the province of Pontevedra, Galicia, Spain, and part of the O Morrazo Peninsula. This festival more than 20 years old, was born thanks to the Gaitas School of Moaña "Semente Nova" who was in charge of organizing the first edition. It was celebrated under the name of I Festival Nocturno Celta do Morrazo (I Celtic Night Festival of Morrazo) on the 15th of August, 1985. The main objective of the Interceltic Festival of Morrazo is to promote traditional Spanish folklore and the new trends in this musical genre, internationally and nationally. In 2003 it was declared of cultural interest by the European Union and the Ministry of Culture of the Government of Spain. Apart from the local Galician folk music bands other artists from all over the world participate at this music festival from Scotland, Northumbria, Ireland, Canada, and Brittany.

We might even get a chance to speak with the artists after their shows so don't miss the opportunity! As well we might even squeeze some time to see the artisan stalls at this festival.

Another great concert, I wish I could have attended more. The music was so good. Plus, we got the bonus of some local folk dances with great moves and wonderful costumes. Such a fun evening. Thanks so much to Sean and Tiernan for taking us!

Sean & Tiernan are a great team. The time difference means I can only join a few, but always find the tours informative, interesting, and fun. Look forward to more when the timing allows.
