Introduction

Trad, Funk and Electronica Music from Scotland at the Interceltic Festival of Morrazo Featuring Elephant Sessions

Coming all the way from the Mighty Highlands of Scotland to the Seafood Galician Paradise of Moaña, the Elephant Sessions, Winners Of The BBC Scots Trad Music Awards "Album Of The Year" 2017 And "Live Act Of The Year" 2018. The Scottish band has come to the Interceltic Festival of Morrazo to perform an incredible show combining the very best of trad, funk and electronica. Formed in 2012 by Euan Smillie (fiddle), Alasdair Taylor (mandolin), Seth Tinsley (bass, synth) and Greg Barry (drums, samples). This is a very recognizable folk music band who have claimed its name in this music industry genre and has paved the way to participate in some of the most prestigious European Festivals. Reviews from Rolling Stone Magazine, folk magazine coverage, radio features, documentaries, and highlights shows on television stations.

Experience a Spectacular Celtic Music Festival Live Online at the Fishing Village of Moaña, Galicia, Spain

The Interceltic Festival of Morrazo is a folk music festival held in the fishing village of Moaña, located in the province of Pontevedra, Galicia, Spain and part of the O Morrazo Peninsula. This festival more than 20 years old, was born thanks to the Gaitas School of Moaña "Semente Nova" who was in charge of organizing the first edition. It was celebrated under the name of I Festival Nocturno Celta do Morrazo (I Celtic Night Festival of Morrazo) on the 15th of August, 1985. The main objective of the Interceltic Festival of Morrazo is to promote traditional Spanish folklore and the new trends in this musical genre, internationally and nationally. In 2003 it was declared of cultural interest by the European Union and the Ministry of Culture of the Government of Spain. Apart from the local Galician folk music bands other artists from all over the world participate at this music festival from Scotland, Northumbria, Ireland, Canada, and Brittany.

We might even get a chance to speak with the artists after their shows so don't miss the opportunity! As well we might even squeeze some time to see the artisan stalls at this festival.

The Concello de Moaña is in charge of organizing this festival that is celebrated every year at the end of July or beginning of August, this year is the 38th edition and takes place on the 29th, 30th, and 31st of July.
