A Medieval Tournament was a competition for knights where they would show off their military skills and chivalrous qualities to win popularity, riches, and glory. This type of competition has come from a way back, dating from the 10th to 16th century, and was the principal expression of aristocratic ideals such as chivalry and noble lineage, where the prestige of noble families was put to the test!

Tour was exciting and interesting. The poor signal, which we were told to expect, did not deter from the jousting and archery being performed in front of us. The walk down to the church was an added bonus as we saw a falconry display. Well done Sean and Tiernan for persevering.
